

Not So Far Away: Collected Short Stories

Surprising encounters with aliens - some friendly, some not so friendly, unexplainable time machine malfunctions, complicated issues of religious freedom and human rights, the unexpected power of social media, life being lived more and more online, custom-made babies - the 16 short stories in this anthology take up what is happening now and envision how things might develop in the future. Some stories are serious and thought-provoking, some are just for fun, but they all come to surprising and imaginative conclusions and show that the future and what it brings might be not so far away.
